LEWISVILLE, TEXAS (April 25, 2016) – Overhead Door, the inventor of the upward-lifting garage door, has completely revamped the look and feel of its website, www.overheaddoor.com. The new design features eye-catching images of beautiful garage doors and its responsive design allows for easy navigation of product information from mobile devices.

"The new overheaddoor.com has an all new look and feel that is much more inviting to customers than the previous website," said Ali Isham, marketing director for Overhead Door. "With the responsive design, easier navigation, new photography, and unique tools, we are helping our distributors drive more customers to their business."

Overheaddoor.com will now feature unique landing pages for each distributor and an updated Architect's Corner, a resource that allows commercial and residential architects and specifiers to select multiple documents for a product and download them into one, which allows users to consolidate files for easy emailing.
